AN OPEN LETTER,

ILWACO, Wash., Jan. 4, 1897.

To The Editor of The Oregonian, Portland, Oregon.

Sir:—December 15, 1897, in your editorial "Why Not?" you state: "This government is now sustaining in standard silver dollars, uncoined bullion represented by treasury notes, and subsidiary silver, a silver stock of over $631,000,000, which without its stamp guaranteeing redemption, would be worth less than 45 cents on the dollar."

The so-called monetary commission in its preliminary report stating under head of "Silver Currency" that the parity of our silver dollars is assured by the exchange of gold for them on demand.

Yourselves and other goldites have reiterated such statements for years until by many it has been accepted as a fact.

But I brand it as false, and state our standard silver dollar, and silver paper are not maintained by any "stamp guaranteeing redemption" or "gold exchange" and defy you to give the law and section authorizing such redemption.

This question has repeatedly come up in congress, and treasurer after treasurer has stated that, "Neither in law nor practice are standard silver dollars or their legal paper representatives redeemable in gold or paper that is redeemable in gold."

But this knowledge has been systematically suppressed by the gold-standard press, et al and they with yourself, have persistently (not alone by false logic, but with brazen falsehood) endeavored to deceive the general public.

Stop—, and there will be no occasion for these letters, but an affair has become more nature with you by this time.

On March 10, 1892, the United States senate "Resolved, That the secretary of treasury is hereby directed to inform the senate whether silver dollars or silver certificates have been redeemed or exchanged for gold, and, if such redemption or exchange has been made, thereof."

To which resolution the secretary of treasury replied, March 22, 1892: "Respecting redemption, or exchange of silver or silver certificates, I have to state that the department has not redeemed silver dollars or silver certificates in gold or gold certificates, nor has it exchanged silver dollars or certificates for gold or gold certificates."

Please refer to congressional record and substantiate this.

The public printer publishes the above and following letter Cong. Rec. 1893, Vol. 25 part 3, page 249 appendix:

TREASURY DEPARTMENT, Dec. 7, 1892.

"MY DEAR SIR:—I have your favor of December 7, 1892, to inform you that silver dollars are not in law or in practice exchanged for gold or for paper that calls for gold."

"Very respectfully yours,"

"CHAS. FOSTER."

Will you dare to dispute this evidence? Was there ever a falsifier on earth your equal? Carlisle is one of your idols, read this extract:

"TREASURY DEPARTMENT, October 17, 1893.

"The President of the Senate:

"I have the honor to acknowledge receipt of resolution, adopted by the senate on the 9th inst.

In response thereto I have the honor to say, that the law providing for the redemption or exchange of silver certificates, which requires that such certificates shall be redeemed or exchanged in kind, or for standard silver dollars, has, so far as this department has information been strictly complied with by the treasurer of the United States and the various subtreasury offices, and no gold coin has been given in return for such certificates or standard silver dollars."

Respectfully yours,

"J. G. CARLISLE."

Mark well these statements, thou reincarnated Ananias.

In past years our silver dollars have

Hood's Pills

Should be in every family medicine chest and every traveler's grip. They are invaluable when the stomach is out of order, cure headache, biliousness, and all liver troubles. Mild and efficient. 25 cents.

always been at face value whenever they have been a full legal tender for all debts, public and private. Gold redemption has not contributed one iota to their value, as it has not existed.

After the demonetization law of 1873-74 and to 1878 our silver dollars were not full legal tender. During part of that period they fell below their face value, and passed in some sections of our country at from 5 to 10 per cent discount. Viz: at bullion value.

Being but legal tender for $5.00, but $5.00 on any debt could be paid in silver dollars; thus a man owing $20.00 and having it in silver dollars could pay but $5.00 on that debt, and was forced by law to hawk the balance of his money to a money lender and sell it at a discount for full legal tender paper or gold to pay the balance.

A good thing for the money lender, and you are trying to restore such conditions, as you advocate among other evils, limiting the legal tender of our present silver dollar.

This discount was destroyed when the free silver men carried over a gold president's veto, the law of 1878 making them full legal tender again, and that the law of 1873 has been fought by gold men from that day to this. They have succeeded in destroying the coinage authorized by that law, but not as yet the legal tender clause. The law of 1878, which declares that standard silver dollars shall be received for all debts, public and private and the receipt by the government of them in payment of debt maintains them at face value, not gold redemption, as it does not exist, either directly or indirectly.

No one would claim that receiving two articles on terms of exact equality, redeems either articles in the other.

Neither can any one honestly claim, that receiving silver and gold coins on terms of exact equality, redeems gold in silver, or silver in gold.

Have proven beyond your power to honestly refuse, that the silver $613,000,000, which you state in your editorial would be worth "less than 45 cents on the dollar" (that is less than $275,850,000), but for "its stamp guaranteeing" has no redemption guarantee, and that it is worth 100 cents solely on its own law given merits as money.

But if you, Gage, etc., could have your way, and as Gage states, "Commit the country a little more thoroughly to the gold standard," the discount on our silver coins would be about 50 percent; that is, the coin would pass at about their bullion value, as they did in the years prior to 1873, and after 1873. Why? because no "thorough" gold standard country has any full legal tender silver coins. The silver coins of England and Germany are limited tender, and England has but $115,000,000, Germany $215,000,000, of silver money. While France, which has full legal tender silver like ourselves, has about $500,000,000 in silver coins, placing that country on a limited bimetallic standard such as we have at present.

This volume of money, $613,000,000 would not be at face value if its debt paying power was limited to $5.00.

The only factor that maintains them at face value is the full legal tender power these silver dollars possess. This being a fact, it is only a question whether we have a larger issue of these same silver dollars to help maintain our prosperity from constantly decreasing valuation.

Does it not prove good real money in themselves, supported by nothing but their power to cancel debt. And under free coinage the bullion value must rise to face value of a dollar.

Free coinage would slightly decrease the purchasing power of all our present currency, gold and silver, etc. But we must not forget that rising prices are produced by decreasing purchasing power of money.

And we want rising prices, because rising prices stimulate industry and development, and causes money to be invested in investments. Instead of bonds as falling prices do, which contracts business and leaves labor unemployed.

Why do you resort to the publishing of falsehood after falsehood in your endeavor to maintain your money at present value? Do not conclusively prove that you, the monetary commission et al can not maintain it by stating the truth?

A cause that resorts to such ends must be poor indeed.

And I have in former letters as in this, clearly illustrated a few of your many, many falsehoods on this money issue.

Most humbly your servant,

JNO. WALTER SEABORG.

P. S. Have just received letter dated Dec. 28, 1897, from present assistant secretary of treasury reiterating the quoted statements made herein by Foster and Carlisle.
